

Patrick Geary, Professor of Medieval history at the Institute for Advanced Study, spent two weeks as a Global Fellow at Peking University in Beijing, following other Global Fellows who have included former Director Phillip Griffiths and distinguished scholars and scientists including six Noble Prize Winners. While at Peking University, he lectured on historical perspectives on European identity and genetic history and participated in seminars with historians, archaeologists, and geneticists from around China along with his host, former Member Luo Xin shown in this photo.