Aspects of Literacy and Orality among Medieval Jews and Their Neighbors

Robert Brody
Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Robert Brody is professor emeritus of Talmud at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Best known for his work on the literature of the Babylonian Geonim, he has also published extensively on Mishnah and Tosefta as well as issues concerning the Babylonian Talmud and the textual history and editing of rabbinic literature. He is currently engaged in writing a commentary on tractate Ketubbot of the Babylonian Talmud.

Wednesday, March 29, 2017
4:30pm
1879 Hall, Lounge

Sponsored by the Program in Judaic Studies, Ronald O. Perelman Institute for Judaic Studies and the Department of Religion, Princeton University